

National Black Church Ecumenical Council for Economic Equity, and employ it to not only lead the charge, cause further change plus sustain the effort for the next 25 years and beyond as well.

The Twenty four million African America church going believers is nothing short of clout-plus that is provided they are properly mobilized.

Notice I didn't say organized. I deliberately skipped over that word and said mobilized. Mobilized is the right term because the Black Church community is already well organized. What's needed is this; The Baptist Denominations, Methodist Denominations, Church of God and Christ, simply need to agree on a economic equity agenda, mobilize and apply their respective resources around that agenda, I know that reading our history implies that expecting black religious leaders and their respective denominations and congeratons to mobilize and collaborate with one another in that fashion is a pipe dream it best. My response that the observation is that those who make that to allow Affirmative Action to county as federal government policy those justices agreed that Black America had 25 more years to achieve economic equity and social justice.

and international climate toward our country,
