OLYMPIA (AP) —Republican candidates Art Fletcher and Slade Gorton are speaking at 12 college campuses in Washington this week on "violence in America."

Fletcher is the candidate for lieutenant governor and Gorton for attorney general.

They kicked off the series of speeches at Whitworth College in Spokane Tuesday morning. Appearances were planned later in the day at Gonzaga University in Spokane and Washington State University in Pullman.

The candidates will speak later in the week at Whitman College, Yakima Community College, Central Washington State, Pacific Lutheran, Tacoma Community College, the University of Puget Sound, Seattle Pacific, the University of Washington and Western Washington State.
