Demos Pick O'Connell To Oppose Gov. Evans

220

SEATTLE (AP) — John James O'Connell, the blue-eyed Irishman who has been Washington's attorney general for 12 years, embarked Wednesday on the last leg of his uphill race to unseat first-term Gov. Dan Evans.

"It will be pretty much the same kind of campaign we've been running for the past year," O'Connell said after he gained victory Tuesday over State Sen. Martin J. Durkan. "I plan to make a lot of hands.

In a statement early Wednesday, Durkan said:

"The issues that I have stressed I believe to be the ones that are most vital to the future of the citizens of the state.
