Opinion THE PUBLIC EDITOR

The Public Editor deals with complaints and concerns about The Sacramento Bee's content. His opinions are his own. You can contact the Public Editor by mail at P.O. Box 15779, Sacramento, 95852, by e-mail at publiceditor@sacbee.com, or call directly at (916) 321-1250.

Who is the public editor?

Armando Acuna began his career in 1973 as a reporter with the San Jose Mercury News. He worked there for 12 years, covering state government, City Hall, politics and other issues. He also worked for the Los Angeles Times for 15 years, including stints as that newspaper's Sacramento bureau chief and city editor of its San Diego County edition. Acuna briefly worked under former Gov. Gray Davis as an assistant secretary for the State and Consumer Services Agency before returning to newspapers in April 2000 as The Bee's deputy sports editor and then sports editor. He was born in Tucson, Ariz., and raised in the Bay Area. Acuna has a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of California, Berkeley, and lives with his family in Davis.

Letters Policy:

Please include your real name, address and daytime phone number. There is a 200-word limit for letters to the editor. Letters may be edited and republished in any format. All letters submitted become the property of The Sacramento Bee.

Forum/Other Views Submissions:

We're looking for well-written pieces that make people think or provide new insight into a familiar problem. Major newspaper syndicates provide more material than we can use on national and international topics, so we're especially interested in articles on local, state or Western regional issues. But that doesn't mean we wouldn't enjoy something that examines an aspect of everyday life. There's no need to call first to ask if we're interested. Write it (between 500 and 650 words) and send us the material. If we want it, we'll call within five working days.
